

Maslyakov Roman Alexandrovich.

Graduated from St. Petersburg Polytechnic University, Technology and Materials Research department. In parallel with postgraduate studies in Metal science worked at the Center for New Materials at Polytechnic University.

In 2014 joined Air Liquide Company, the world leader in technical gases production, technology development and service for industry. Nowadays works on position business development manager in "Industrial merchant" department, division "Materials and energy". The sphere of professional interests includes modern & effective application technologies of technical gases in industry, including pulp and paper, metallurgy, chemical and glass industries. Project leader for Waste water treatment application development for industrial enterprises.